Your overall health can be measured by your eye health

Good eyesight is a big part of your overall health and happiness. That's why visiting your eye doctor regularly is so important. You can catch eye health problems early, so vision loss can be prevented. The American Academy of Ophthalmology recommends adults age 65 and older get complete eye exams every one to two years to check for cataracts, glaucoma and other eye conditions.¹ Early detection of these conditions may help your health long term.

Your health matters

That's why benefits that cover your vision health are so important. At Humana, we offer benefits that can help you achieve your health and wellness goals. These benefits provide choices that make it easier for you to get coverage that fits your needs and keeps you healthy.
