

Expand your knowledge of value-based care (VBC)

Learn more with online training from the University of Houston and Humana

Support your patients' health journey

Explore the power of effective communication between healthcare professionals and patients that leads to a partnership focused on quality care. This online VBC specialization program, created through the Humana Integrated Health System Sciences Institute at the University of Houston, teaches VBC fundamentals through real-world examples, and can earn you continuing medical education (CME) credits.

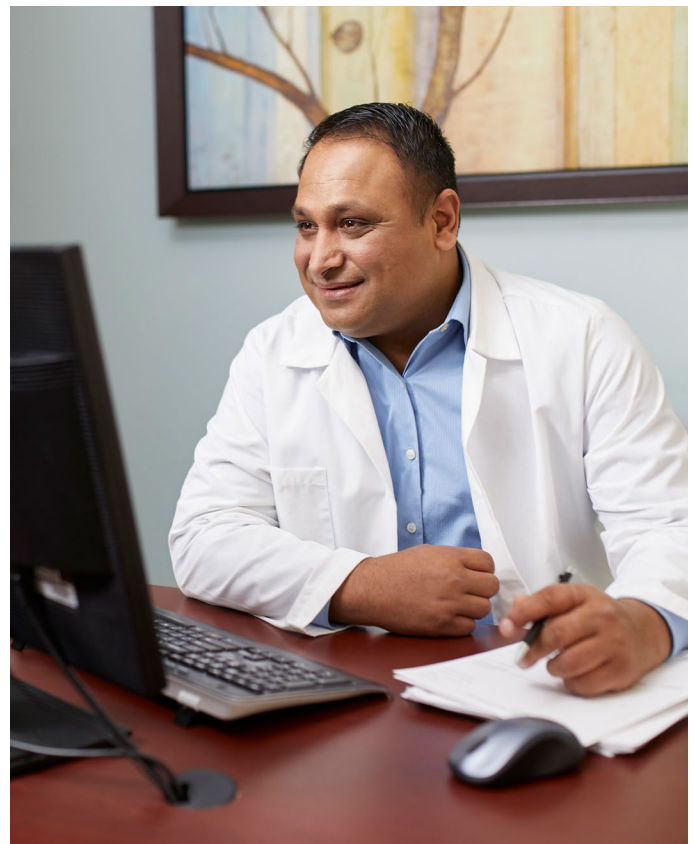

Get recognized

- Get credit: Earn up to 36.25 CME credits, accredited by the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP).
- Decide your path: Take any of the six courses independently and receive a certificate for each.
- Earn your specialization and digital badge: Complete all six courses and a capstone project to help deepen your knowledge of VBC and earn the specialization designation and digital credential badge.
